What Are Cookies

As is common practice with almost all professional websites this site uses cookies, which are tiny files that are downloaded to your computer, to improve your experience. This page describes what information they gather, how we use it and why we sometimes need to store these cookies. We will also share how you can prevent these cookies from being stored however this may downgrade or 'break' certain elements of the sites functionality.

How We Use Cookies

We use cookies for a variety of reasons detailed in The Cookies We Set section below. They are used by us to help our website users navigate our website efficiently and like most website we use cookies to capture certain information about our site's users.

Disabling Cookies

You can prevent the setting of cookies by adjusting the settings on your browser (see your browser Help for how to do this). Due to their core role of enhancing or enabling the usability of websites or site processes, disabling cookies may prevent users from accessing certain parts of this website and many other websites that you visit. It is therefore recommended that you leave on all cookies if you are not sure whether you need them or not in case they are used to provide a service that you use.

Alternatively, you may wish to visit <http://www.allaboutcookies.org/> which contains comprehensive information on how to do this on a wide variety of browsers. You will also find details on how to delete cookies from your computer as well as more general information about cookies.

The Cookies We Set

Third Party Cookies

In some special cases we use cookies provided by trusted third parties. The following section details which third party cookies you might encounter through this site.

This site uses Google Analytics which is one of the most widespread and trusted analytics solution on the web for helping us to understand how you use the site and ways that we can improve your experience. These cookies may track things such as how long you spend on the site and the pages that you visit so we can continue to produce engaging content and enhance your user experience. For more information on Google Analytics cookies, including how to set our browser specifically to refuse these cookies, see the official Google Analytics page.

Ok with this?

Hopefully that has clarified things for you and as was previously mentioned if there is something that you aren't sure whether you need or not it's usually safer to leave cookies enabled in case it does interact with one of the features you use on our site.

You were given the opportunity to consent to our using cookies as you entered our site (to get this far, you have already either consented or opted out of their use).

If you opted out, then we have switched off all cookies except our functional cookies which are needed to make the site run correctly. However, if you wish to do so, you can change your browser settings to reject cookies. As the means by which you can do this varies from browser to browser, please visit your web browser's "Help" menu for further details.
